Affliction.

Count each affliction, whether light or grave, God's messenger sent down to thee. Do thou With courtesy receive him ; rise and bow; And ere his shadow pass thy threshold, crave Permission first his heavenly feet to lave, Then lay before him all thou hast; allow No cloud of passion to usurp thy brow,

Or mar thy hospitality; no wave Of mortal fumult to obliterate The soul's marmoreat calmness. Grief should be Like joy-majestic, equable, sedate, Confirming, cleansing, raining, making free,

Strong to consume smail troubles, to commend Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts fasting to the |Aubrey De l'ere.

Letter from San Francisco. [From our Correspondent.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19, 1865.

To-day I received a letter from Mr. Gregg, so long a resident of Honolulu, both as an officer of your Government, as Minister of Finance, and of ours as Commissioner of the United States at the Hawalian Court. Mr. Gregg lived for many years at Springfield, Illinois, and was intimate with our late President, who also resided there at and before his election to the office of Chief Magistrate of our glorious Union. The sentiments expressed by Mr. Gregg are typical of those felt by every loyal citizen, and coming from one so well known to all Americans in Honolulu as he is, I think it not out of place to give them in

Ceason Crry, April 16, 1865. Yesterday the whole community was paralyzed as with a thunderbolt, by the sad intelligence of the murder of the President. All business at once ceased. Men gathered in groups in gloomy sorrow, and whispered their thoughts of the dire all who might sympathize with or rejoice at the hell-born deed. A word of approval would have been the signal for blood. But the few secessionists we have in our midst were prudent enough to keep their own counsels, and repress the outbursts of joy with which their hearts were welling up. Well was it for them that they did so, and well it is that they still continue to be prudent. No treason shall raise its hideous front in Nevada, even if our streets are drenched in blood to end its monstrous

In Virginia City there was quiet and mournful order, but it depended upon the determination of Union men, who resolutely put down every manifestation of secession sympathics. In Aurora I learned that three or four villains paid the price of their ill-timed temerity. --Well may the nation be clothed in mourning on such an occasion. Like Moses, the President led the nation to the view of peace and renewed prosperity, and, like the ancient prophet, he has been stricken down in full view of all the fruits of his

I feel somewhat more than sorrow for the statesman fallen in his glory. The memories of old associations and years of personal friendship thicken around me, and make me feel that the assassin's blow has stricken down not only the wise ruler, but the noble, just, and ever-honest man, the good friend, the generous neighbor and the patriotic citizen. His memory is immortal and his piace in history by the side of Washington.

Funeral Obsequies at San Francisco. The deceased President lies in state in the East Room of the White House entil to-day, when the funeral and services will take place, pursuant to an announcement by-Hos. William Hunter, Acting Secretary of State. The various religious denominations through the country have been invited to meet at their respective places of worship, at the hour of twelve, noon, for the purpose of solemnizing the occasion by proper ceremonies. The day selected for the celebration of the obsequies, at a meeting of our citizens, on Sunday, the 16th inst., was Thursday, the 20th, but on the receipt of the intelligence of this announcement, the Mayor and Board of Supervisors changed it to be in accordance with the general celebration throughout the length and breadth of the land. This change took place yesterday, and, in the language of the Address to the Public, "The limited time given the Committee will not permit it to make any elaborate announcement of the character of the procession, but it desires in general terms to state that citizens are requested to close their places of business, to drape their buildings in mourning, and to participate in such other ceremonies as may be suitable to the melancholy occasion. Religious Societies which propose to observe the day in their churches, are requested to postpone service till the evening." Up to the time I write, the procession has begun and ended, and never has San Francisco witnessed so mournful and yet so glorious a sight. Over thirty thousand people, among whom were the most prominent in wealth, education, and refinement of those our city boasts among her citizens. All walked except the military chieftains, the Consular corps, the Mayor, and a few Chiness merchants, whose peculiarly-fashioned shoes forbade walking; these rode in carriages. I watched the procession from my office, at the corner of Washington and Montgomery streets, at a point where it turned, and I had a full view. Messrs, R, B. Armstrong and John H. Cole, of your place, were with me. It occupied two hours in passing. It was divided into eleven divisions, and there was a twelfth, not in the official programme, one of colored citizens, and it was eminently fitting that they should form a part of a funeral procession in honor of a champion of their race, such as Abraham Lincoln has been. The morning papers will give you fuller accounts, and also of the Personal. Mr. W. E. Cutrell has established himself at the corner of

Davis and Clay streets, and yesterday I met Mr. Frink, who was formerly in the soda water business in Honolulu, but recently a mill-owner at Nevada. The Rev. Wio. Snow, is at Grass Valley, preaching, and Mr. George H. Ingols is there gold quartz-mining. I occasionally meet Mr. J. Fuller, who looks well and hearty, and hold daily intercourse with Mr. N. L. Ingols, formerly clerk of the Makee plantation, who, I regret to say, appears in ill health, and gradually wasting away, he says, from being confined too long in the stocks. His office is on Montgomery street, among the brokers, which probably accounts for it. Mr. A. P. Everett has a kindly greeting and a shake of the hand for those who call upon him at McRuer & Merrill's and Mr. W. F. Ladd extends the right hand of fellowship to his old Island acquaintances who drop in on him at C. W. Brooks & Co's. I will end my gossip-narrative, epistolary and personal-
